

PLANNING YOUR GIFT TO THE METROPOLITAN MUSEUM OF ART

Since its founding in 1870, many generations of The Met's friends have demonstrated the importance of this institution in their lives by providing for the Museum in their estate plans. These thoughtful friends have contributed immeasurably to the growth of The Met's collection, endowment, and programs. Their support ensures that The Met is the most dynamic and inspiring art museum in the world.

Planned giving arrangements have long-term financial benefits for you and for The Met. A gift through your will, or bequest, is one of the simplest and most popular ways to provide for the Museum's future. In addition, by establishing a life income gift, such as a charitable gift annuity or charitable trust, you can support the Museum while also receiving a stream of income for yourself or another person as well as tax advantages.

The Met was built by many generations. Each generation must provide conscientious stewardship because great institutions must be maintained to remain great. By making a gift to The Met, you can plan for the future while helping preserve and grow the Museum as a resource for present and future generations of visitors, students, and scholars.

If you make such a gift, you are eligible for membership in The Met William Society, which was created to acknowledge and honor the friends of The Met who have included the Museum in their estate plans. We invite you to join us.
